BRITISH CONSULAR NOTIFICATION.

THE undersigned this day assumes his functions as Consul for Her Britannic Majesty at this port.

H. B. M.'s Consul.

British Consulate, Shanghai,

NOTICE.

BRITISH CONSULATE,
SHANGHAI, April 20th, 1861.

IN pursuance of the Notification issued by H. M. Consul, on the 12th Instant, the undersigned has ceased to perform the Duties of Packet Agent at this Port. From and after this date therefore no outward mails will be made up or inward mails distributed by him.

C. TREASURE JONES.

THE London mail of 11th March, will be due in Hongkong on the 23rd and here on the 30th inst. Last year it was received on the 29th April per Formosa.

THE Steamer with the next outward mail for Europe leaves this at day-light of the 24th inst.

THE unsatisfactory state of our postal accomodations which have been from time to time gradually drawing within more narrow limits crying loudly for reform, have at last been brought to a crisis by the Consular Notification which appeared in our issue of last Saturday. Decisive measures although generally to be applauded are sometimes very inconvenient, and in this case most seriously so to a large portion of the community, who, should the decision of our Consul still be adhered to will not be able to post their letters at all, a difficulty from which we see no means of escape. The existence of a foreign post office in Shanghai was in itself an anomaly, but now the mail has arrived we have suddenly neither post office nor packet agent, our letters will not be sent to England unless they are prepaid and there is no one here to receive the payment. Those who have agents in Hongkong may get over the difficulty, but those who are not so fortunate are placed in a dilemma from which they cannot extricate themselves, and this is probably to last until the Government at Hongkong supply us with a packet agency, the duties of which have hitherto been performed much more economically than will henceforth be the case, for no one would undertake the onerous and increasing duties of a Postmaster here, for the sum which has usually been awarded as a perquisite to our Consular officers; and independent of this a separate establishment will be necessary, and altogether the change will incur a much greater expense than any government office can reasonably be expected to digest under a year at least, that is judging from precedents in all government business. However while trusting that Mr. Meadows's, decisive public notification will convince the authorities at the south of our imperative necessities, we cannot help hoping that his successor may so far relent as to allow the duties to be carried on for some little time longer, to the great convenience of a number of the residents, and to allow time for the notification to have its due effect on our potentates. If then no relief is forthcoming, we know of no remedy under the present rules for prepayment, than the general introduction of postage stamps which will take effect in a few months hence, when the trouble and consequently the expense will be considerably less to the Government than it would otherwise be.

Much might be said on the imperfect way the duties of the post offices are performed, and the instance of irregularity, neglect, and injustice, related in the following letter, we regret to say is not without its parallel, for a similar case has occurred only lately to ourselves in which a document was received from the General Post Office, London, stating that a letter was lying there for us, and that if a certain sum was paid it would be forwarded. Postage stamps to the amount were sent which were duly affixed to the letter and we received it forthwith on the 13th March last, but lo! it was from Ta-lien-hwan, dated July 12th 1860, and addressed legibly to Shanghai; thus it took nine months for this letter to reach us, which should have come to hand in a less number of days.

It is bad enough to have our letters forwarded by such circuitous routes and then impounded, without having to pay for what clearly arises from the errors of those whose sole duty it is to forward them direct to their destination and as our correspondent Epitome justly observes such errors might be productive of the gravest consequences to ourselves or friends.

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA HERALD.

SIR,—On the 3rd Dec. last I received a printed letter from the General Post Office London, informing me that a letter was lying there which would not be forwarded to China until a certain amount of Postage was paid. I wrote to my friends in London to take delivery of it and by the Aden I received the letter. It will hardly be believed that the said letter was dated Ta-lien-wan 25th July 1860 and though distinctly addressed to me here had been through some gross negligence sent to London, and then by a Red-tape System which is most unjust, the letter had to be detained until communication is made to me, and by me home, and only then by paying a sum I was not entitled to pay, I obtained possession.

Fortunately, another letter received about the same time enabled me to carry out the wishes of the writer regarding a monetary transaction but the letter might have been of the most serious import. Enclosing my card.—I am Sir, your obedient Servant,

EPITOME.

Shanghai, 4th April, 1861.

LOCAL.—In whatever direction we turn the incapacity of the Imperialist troops to recover even their lost ground, when opposition is made, is becoming daily more apparent. An expedition is sent to re-take the Tung-t'ing-shan, on the way they encounter a body of Rebel soldiers, an engagement ensues in which the commander is drowned, whereon his thousand or so of soldiers immediately give up further thoughts of fighting, disperse themselves over the country, and become a greater scourge to the inhabitants than even the visits of the Rebels would be.

The large town of Hai-yen-tien, on the coast between this and Ningpo has been re-occupied by the Imperialists. The town has not been seriously damaged, but considerable numbers of the fishermen living there have been killed. Towns in the above district that are still in the hands of the Rebels have to contribute $1,000 a month as taxes.

It may be interesting to those intending to make excursions to the hills to know that there are now no Rebels at Sze-king, but that unfortunately the creek has been dammed up a little this side of that place to prevent the passage of Rebel boats. Small boats however are readily obtained to convey one on to the hills. All the small villages at the foot of the hills have been destroyed.

There is some prospect of partially getting rid of the grave nuisance in this neighbourhood for a proclamation has been issued ordering that coffins shall no longer be allowed to remain exposed but must at once be buried—and that those who have not sufficient funds to defray the funeral expenses must club together to get the burial performed—and cautions such against burning their dead, a practice which appears to be sometimes resorted to when the poor are in very straitened circumstances, and is common amongst the Buddhist priests.

H. M. S. Reynard arrived last night from Chefoo. The Scout with the Admiral arrived on the 13th and was to leave again on the 15th for Tientsin from which place we have heard no news of any importance.

H. M. S. Urgent leaves this for Hongkong on the 26th, with the Loodianah Regiment on board.

THE steamer Fire Dart belonging to Messrs. Augustine Heard & Co. which had been daily expected arrived on the 10th inst. She is built on the style of the river boats in America, than which nothing can be better adapted for the navigation of the Yang-tsze kiang. Her accommodations are excellent and any opinions that can yet be formed of her are certainly very favorable, but on account of the foggy weather, experienced on her passage up she had no opportunity of showing what speed she could attain. She is spoken of by scientific American papers as being a very creditable production of the builder, Mr. Thomas Collyer of New York. Her dimensions are,—Length on deck from fore part of stem to after part of stern post (above spar deck) 200 ft.—Breadth of beam (moulded) 30 ft.—Depth of hold 11 ft.—Tonnage 650 tons. She is fitted with one vertical beam condensing engine; diameter of cylinder 46 ins., length of stroke 12 ft., diameter of paddles over floats 28 ft., length of floats 8 ft. and depth 2 ft.

In addition to the above we have received the following particulars from Capt. Johnson.

"She left New York 10th December, "stopping at Cape de Verd, Cape Town, "Galle, Singapore, and Saigon, arriving "in Hongkong as perfect in every res-"pect as when she left New York, not the "simplest damage having occurred during "the voyage. She encountered several "gales of wind, and proved a most ex-"cellent sea boat, she is of light draught, "drawing with 300 tons dead weight, 8 "ft. only. Consumption of coal 10 tons "per day at sea, running a distance of "225 miles. Running at full speed she "consumes only 17 tons per 24 hours."

She left this on Monday last for a trip up the Yang-tsze-kiang and was passed by the Ta Yung on her way down from Nanking near Plover Point.

Another vessel of the same class and constructed by the same builder is shortly expected out—the Hau-kow.

THE Swallow for many years Messrs. Lindsay & Co.'s receiving ship at Woosung was towed out of harbour on Tuesday by the Chinese steamer Pluto on her way to Chin-kiang where we believe she is to be established as a Custom House for the Imperial Government.

SERVICES which incur much personal risk and are well performed are at all times deserving of a fair meed of praise and suitable reward, and we are glad to find that the French government have acknowledged those of Lieut. Huxham of the Kestrel by the presentation of the order of the Legion of Honour, for the destruction of pirates and recapture of a boat which belonged to the Bishop of Ningpo in July last.

Lieut. Huxham was severely wounded in this affair, but his services in relieving the trade between Shanghai, Ningpo and the Chusan islands from the presence of numbers of marauders, deserve to be noticed by his own government also, and we hope to hear as we believe we shall, of this gracious act of His Imperial Majesty being followed up by at least a speedy promotion in the service of which he has made himself a most useful member, as a reward for his energy, perseverance, and courage, which has rendered the Kestrel a formidable object to the piratical craft in the Chusan Archipelago, and which have on so many occasions felt the weight of her metal.

WE observe that the Report of the Deputation from the Chamber of Commerce, on the Yang-tsze-kiang, is published in the Hongkong journals. The paper having been originally published by the Chamber at Shanghai, it would naturally be looked for in our columns first, and some conjecture may arise as to the reason of its non appearance. We should have been glad to have placed it on record, but some objection was entertained, why, we do not know, as to the expediency of its appearance contemporary with the original publication by the Chamber, and as every one here must now be acquainted with the contents of the document we do not reprint it, the interesting letter from our correspondent H. for all practical purposes amply compensating for the omission.

NORTH CHINA BRANCH OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.

THE regular monthly meeting was held last Tuesday. In the absence of the president and vice-president the Rev. J. Edkins, B. A., was called to the chair.

C. Alabaster, Esqr., and the Rev. R. Dawson, B. A., were elected resident members. A paper on Agricultural Investigations in China, Chusan, was then read. The writer treated the subject with considerable minuteness.

The island of Chusan is situated between the 30th to 31st degrees of N. latitude, and between the 122nd and 123rd of E. longitude. Its length is about 20 miles and its greatest diameter about 10 miles. It is the largest of a group of islands which has been named after the principal one. The island is covered with mountains, rising to the height of 1,000 feet. These mountains are chiefly composed of trap, pegmatite, eurite, porphyry, common granite, grey quartz, sandstone deposits, chalk deposits, and pudding stone mixed with coal.

In the northern part the soil is poor, consequently the vegetable world does not exhibit any great degree of luxuriousness or variety. The small acorned oak, the Chinese pine, the juniper, also the mountain or hedge bamboo are found, but all small and stunted in their growth. In the southern part the country is considerably better. The Chinese pine, the Cunninghamia (a genus of plants of the natural order Pinaceæ) Juniper Stillingia (of the order Euphorbiaceæ) and the cypress are met with. The azalea of Chusan is described as being most beautiful, and is said by Mr. Fortune to be equal to any of the specimens met with, in the botanical gardens in England.

It rains very frequently at Chusan. The months of greatest rain are February and March. The temperature is neither excessively cold, nor immoderately warm, the thermometer does not descend below 5°. nor rise above 40°. (Reau.) The author considers the island as by no means unhealthy, and though in 1842, the mortality was exceedingly great among the English troops stationed there, the causes of this mortality lay elsewhere than in the climate.

It is only about eighty years ago (he says) since the island and archipelago became inhabited. Chusan contains about 200,000 inhabitants; and the whole group about one million and a half.

The agricultural implements principally employed are the plough, the hand hoe, the harrow, the rake and the spade. The author differs from those writers who have depreciated the Chinese farming implements, and in fact declares that in their mechanical adaptation to economize labour they are as perfect and as far advanced as any of those in use among the western nations.

The author then enters into a minute description of the system of manuring practised by the Chinese farmers, in which he describes not only the methods employed in collecting it from every possible quarter, but also the manner in which it is distributed so as to attain the greatest possible results. He considers the Chinese method as very much superior to that of the French.

He next treats of their system of irrigation. It is not known at what age irrigation first began to be practised. He supposes about twelve centuries before our own era. It is one of the most powerful agents employed by the Chinese farmers in developing the resources of the soil, and without whose aid it would be impossible to support the dense population which exists on the island.

This is but the first of a series of communications which is expected from the same learned author, and we have no doubt the investigations he is now making will elicit many facts of great interest and importance.

A vote of thanks was given to the author of the Essay, with a request that he might continue to favour the Society from time to time with his contributions.

THE RACES.

ONCE again the grand festival of Shanghai has returned, bringing up the rear of the gaieties of the Easter Week and the cold season generally, and never before has the meeting been so interesting either with regard to horses, cups, or congregation.

Thursday was a splendid day, not a cloud to obscure the bright blue sky, and just enough breeze to prevent the sun's rays being oppressive—and the picture from the Grand Stand was truly pretty, the vivid green of the new crops forming such a magnificent ground for the scarlet trousers of the French, and the red uniforms of the Punjaubees, whilst the contrast was toned down by the intermixture of such a horde of Chinese as was nearly incredible,—(where they came from was a puzzle, and who could have been left behind to cook their chowchow was beyond mortal ken). The crowd was enlivened by the dulcet strains of the French band which played a beautiful selection, and by the presence of several vivandières.

In the Stand the display of new bonnets and dresses, was really superb, (where do all the bonnets sent to Shanghai go to? for one hardly sees the same one twice?), and the fair wearers' bright faces, reflecting the gaiety of the scene and the excitement of the sport, were really more like the faces of those 'absent friends' in England whom we toast so regularly, than anything it has ever been our fortune to view in this land of yellow-pasty faces. Betting amongst the ladies was not so heavy as we have seen it. We heard a lady restricted to ten doz. gloves, 'because the times were so bad'—another lady strictly prohibited from staking jewellery, and altogether there was "little doing."

The French band added greatly to the enjoyment of the fair sex, though placed a little too far from the Stand to be well heard in the soft passages.

We were honoured with the presence of Genl. Montauban, Admiral Protet and almost all the French officers resident here, whose gay costumes de grande tenue and resplendent ynggeries made them the admired of all beholders; and last but not least, H. E. the Taoutai, who appeared in dingy state upon the festive scene about half past two—and remained in the Grand Stand for an hour, during which time one, if not more ladies, were honoured with an introduction, and at 4 o'clock he took his departure in his chair preceded by the usual Chinese guard of honor of four flags, two spears, an umbrella, and some knives borne by his soldiers, and two servants on ponies, all of whom began to howl and shout as he neared and departed from the Grand Stand, where let us place ourselves and review the events of the day.

For the WOOSUNG PLATE only two ponies came to the post. Phantom, created a sensation in November last, by beating the formerly renowned Pillicoddy, who was again his opponent on this occasion. The start was good, but very soon Phantom began to draw ahead, and kept the first place, winning easily by a length and a half, in 52 sec.; Pillicoddy never having had a chance. Phantom appeared a little overtrained but we understand that he was prepared for the Hongkong Spring Meeting, and not having gone south, was kept in training until this one.

The Shanghai Cup. This was an event of great interest, as so many of the subsequent races depended upon it. Garibaldi was the favourite by a good deal, next Pons Asinorum, more probably on account of his jockey, than from any hope of his being able to compete with so renowned an antagonist; one horse started from each of the rival studs, the other two being Cheerful and Baronet. With a fair start Garibaldi took the lead next the rails, Cheerful outside him, closely followed by Baronet next the rails, and Pons outside. At the half mile Baronet changed places with Cheerful who began to drop astern, all the horses however going well together. From the peculiarity of the course they could not be seen again until at the head of the straight about three quarters of a mile from the Stand. There the result might be anticipated. Pons quietly in front with Garibaldi, the Baronet flagging in their wake, soon after Garibaldi received the cowhide but to no purpose, for the little Pons was quietly lifted in a winner by a length, apparently without a struggle, Garibaldi second, the Baronet third by two lengths. Time in performance 2 min. 56 sec.

Pons and his rider were of course vociferously cheered, and the scarlet had again the satisfaction of standing preeminent on his own ground in spite of all opposition.

Four horses started for the Oriental Cup, Palmerston, Godolphin, Mameluke, and Forester. Palmerston got away at a terrific pace, leaving behind him Mameluke and Godolphin, with Forester in the rear. At half a mile the horses were in the same position, Forester having however dropped considerably, at the mile he was third, the order being Palmerston, Mameluke, Forester, and Godolphin, all going together, at the distance however, Godolphin crept to the front and won cleverly by 2 lengths, Forester second, Mameluke third. Time 3 min. 7 sec.

The scarlet was received with an ovation again and the Hongkong favorites showed no more for the day.

The Griffin's Plate. Four ponies started, Sweet William, Pantaloon, Black Diamond, in whose hands the race was, and Petit Corporal. The two scarlets seemed to get away at the start, which was not seen from the Stand, at the half mile Purple began to gain whilst Petit Corporal dropped well to the rear, Pantaloon being third, these positions they retained, Black Diamond winning easily, Sweet William a bad second, Pantaloon a worse third, and the Corporal nowhere.

Haphazard, Spider, Vanguard, Hopping Joe started for the Sans Souci Cup. Vanguard took advantage of a preliminary canter to bolt away steadily in the wrong direction, so the remainder started without him, Haphazard leading, closely followed by Hopping Joe (2) and Spider (3). These positions were preserved pretty well throughout. The Spider got the whip at the half mile and kept steadily away from the rails all the way round. Haphazard won easily in 2 min. 54 sec. Spider second by about 3 lengths, Hopping Joe the same distance behind him, whilst Vanguard, who had joined in towards the close of the proceedings experienced a desire to investigate the rear of the Grand Stand and the adjacent ditch.

For the gift of Sir John Michel, the Peking Cup, five horses started, two of them, Thunderbolt and Mountaineer, the quaintest looking racers ever seen, they were greeted naturally with roars of laughter which however did not discompose the jockeys, each of whom seemed confident of winning. Ly-ee-moon, Chevy Chase, and Bony started well. Mountaineer badly, and Thunderbolt emulous of distinction went off like his namesake for a quarter of a mile, where he was overtaken, and the horses' positions were Thunderbolt, Bony, Chevy Chase, and Ly-ee-moon together, and Mountaineer gallantly in rear. At the mile Ly-ee-moon (1), Chevy Chase (2), Bony (3), Chevy Chase won cleverly by 2 lengths, Ly-ee-moon, (who seemed to have done all he knew), second, with Bony close to him; 3 minutes afterwards the other two horses arrived racing for the last place. Time 3 min. 14 sec.

After several false starts all the horses entered for the Roadsters Plate got away with the exception of Blue Ruin, who, as his custom is, refused to go. From the Stand the race was hardly seen at all, at the head of the straight however it looked very like Ivanhoe's, but the scarlet again pulled Bussel through and landed him a winner, Ivanhoe second, Young Notorious third, Hackney the last. Time 1 min. 59 sec.

Of the day's proceeding generally there is little to be said. The scarlet carried the day, winning the Shanghai, Oriental, Sans Souci and the Roadsters, all in fact he rode for with the exception of the Peking Cup. It was a bad day for the backers of the Hongkong horses no doubt, as well as for their owners, but still "it is a long lane that has no turning" and on some future occasion we hope to see them more fortunate.

Friday morning came black and lowering and with it rain, to the great chagrin of all lovers of the spectacle and backers of light horses; towards noon however, the clerk of the weather relented, and after a few gleams of sunshine it set in for a stew, with a leaden sky and no air, but in the course of the afternoon it became cooler and brighter and the attendance of ladies was nearly as numerous as on the preceding day, the new arrivals by the mail having been just in time to assist in the ceremony.

For the first race, the Yangkingpang Stakes, Phantom and Pillicoddy again entered in opposition. They got away well, but Phantom had and kept the inside place and gradually drawing ahead, won a good race by a length in 53 seconds.

The Farewell Cup.—This mile race could not be seen at all except at the close, from the stand, but it seemed good; at the top of the straight where they first came in sight Haphazard and Vanguard were leading, pretty closely followed by Hopping Joe and Spider in rear. The old trick again, Haphazard neatly handed in by a length, winning in 1 min. 55 sec: Vanguard second, Hoppin' Joe third.

The Ladies Purse.—With an excellent start, 4 ponies Toby, Chrishna, Pony and Yangtsze got away, soon after Yangtsze and Chrishna began to show in front, all the four close together however; at the half mile Pony and Yangtsze in front, with Chrishna and Toby well up. There we lost sight of them till they reached the top of the straight, where Toby and Pony were fighting hard for the first place, Chrishna third, Yangtsze well behind. Toby was the winner after a pretty race, Pony second, Chrishna a bad third. Time 3 min. 10 sec.

The purse, which was of red and white silk, was presented to the successful jockey by a lady, with a neat and appropriate speech. The jockey in receiving it said:—"He was much obliged to the ladies of Shanghai, and hoped that the Shanghai jockeys might long have the pleasure of winning purses from the Shanghai Ladies," or words to that effect, which speech, though short, and not containing much novel or amusing information was received with three cheers, as is usual on such occasions.

The grand event of the meeting, the Challenge Cup was no race at all! to the horrid disgust of the lady spectators especially.

Only four horses came to the post, Pons Asinorum, Canrobert, Cheerful and Baronet. Garibaldi, Forester and others having been withdrawn. The start was invisible but after a few moments of anxiety, Canrobert came tearing round, then about half a mile behind came Pons and Baronet, and Cheerful behind all. After first passing the Stand, it was evident that the Baronet had no chance, so Pons had a quiet canter of two miles, and his owner, the rider deposited the "Challenge Cup" value 250 guineas in his pocket.

Next came the Chaasee Cup for which started Phantom, Pillicoddy and Black Diamond. A good start, and Black Diamond began to draw rapidly ahead, Phantom and Pillicoddy running neck and neck; towards the close however the Diamond was passed by both the other ponies. Phantom won by half a length, Pillicoddy being second and about one length ahead of Black Diamond.

Maid of Honor, Cheerful, Baronet and Mameluke started for the Tsatlee Cup. The lead was taken by the Baronet, next Cheerful, then Mameluke, last Maid of Honor, at considerable distances from one another. These positions they held nearly to the post, Cheerful being well thrown in for second place, one half length behind Baronet, Maid of Honor third. Time in performance 3 min. 2 sec.

The start for the Hack Stakes could not be seen from the Stand, but Blue Ruin made his appearance the wrong way whence it was to be inferred that he had played the same trick as for the Roadsters Plate yesterday. Soon however the horses were seen at the top of the straight apparently well together. Ivanhoe came in winner, Young Notorious second by two lengths, Hackney a fair third.

With regard to the days proceedings, it must be said, that even had the Hongkong horses come to the post, they would have had but a poor chance judging from the first day's work. Without them there was never any doubt about the fate of the Challenge Cup, which the tider of Pons adds, together with the Farewell Cup, to his yesterday's laurels. The great winner, as to number of prizes, of the meeting is however, undoubtedly Phantom who ran for and won during the two days, the Woosung Plate, the Yangkingpang Stakes, and the Chaasee Cup.

Naturally we are largely indebted to the fine weather for the thorough enjoyment we have experienced, and if, next time we meet on the same errand, the intervals between the races could be reduced considerably, the race committee would get more praise for their otherwise excellent arrangements.

H. M. S. Couper was put up at Auction on Wednesday last and bought in at Tls. 47,000. She left for Hongkong, yesterday, and is intended to run between Canton and that colony in Her Majesty's service.

The Waterman was also put up at Auction to-day, and bought in at the limit, viz., Mex. $25,000.

We observe by the Hongkong papers that the notorious felon Allen who broke out of our Consulate jail and was afterwards recaptured at Ningpo and sent to Hongkong for safety, had very nearly effected his escape with two others from the gaol there and was discovered only just in time to prevent his again being at large.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

London, February 26th, 1861.

I shall commence my letter with home news, although there is but comparatively little of interest to be told of what has been done during the last fortnight.

On the 14th inst., votes of thanks to the army for their services in China were moved in both Houses of Parliament by Lord Herbert (better known as Mr. Sidney Herbert), and in the commons by Lord Palmerston, Lord Derby in the Upper House, and Mr. Disraeli in the lower, seconded the motions. As was to be expected opinions were divided as to the policy which had been adopted towards the Chinese. Lord Derby and his party at the same time that they awarded great praise to the army generally, and to the Commander-in-Chief specially for great services, deprecated in severe terms one or two particular acts, as for instance the amount of the indemnity, and more especially the destruction of the Summer Palace. This last point was a very sore one with them. Most of the speakers on the opposition side took occasion to inveigh against it, but the climax was, I think, reached when the Marquis of Bath characterized it as "an act of Vandalism "justly to be ranked with such deeds as the burning of the Library of Alexandria, or the sacking of Rome by the Constable de Bourbon." Naturally the course of action pursued by Lord Elgin and Sir Hope Grant was supported, and very ably supported, by the Government; and, as far as I can gather, the public generally are disposed to agree with them in thinking that it was the wisest and simplest means of marking our strong disapprobation of their base and treacherous mode of dealing with those whom they had captured.

I have very little doubt that we shall shortly have a very stormy debate on the "Chinese Question." A few nights ago, Earl Grey in moving that further papers respecting affairs in China be presented to the House, took the opportunity of reviewing the whole of our policy with that country for the last thirty years, passed some most severe strictures thereon, and concluded by remarking that he considered "the "arrangements now made as a further step upon "a wrong road, and in a vicious course of policy," and that the treaty now concluded "contains "within itself the seeds of future difficulties, and "of future wars." Lord Ellenborough followed in the same strain. The Papers for which Earl Grey moved have been laid before the House, and contain a correspondence between Mr. Bruce and Prince Kung relative to the opening of the two ports Hankow and Kiukiang on the Yangtsze to foreign trade. Mr. Bruce states that he considers it expedient that these two ports should be opened, and that trade should be carried on there under certain regulations which he states to Prince Kung, whom he requests to issue the necessary instructions. This the Prince agrees to do, so that if faith be kept there ought very shortly to be an easy and safe access to the interior of the country.

I do not think there is any other home-political subject which is likely to prove of great interest to you; so I will now give you a little generalnews.

Another great Bank fraud has just been brought to light. A ledger clerk in the West End Branch of the Commercial Bank of London, has by a series of false entries, spreading over a period of eleven years, succeeded in embezzling the large sum of £60,000 (sixty thousand). He has been arrested and an investigation into the case is now going on. The Directors of the Bank handed over all their business to the London and Westminster, from the frauds become known to the public; and thus, by their praiseworthy promptitude, prevented much inconvenience to depositors, and almost certain loss to the shareholders. It would appear from the prisoner's own statement that a great portion of the money has been spent in building speculations; and it is hoped that some part of it may yet be recovered by the Bank.

During the last fortnight the whole country has been visited by most fearful gales which have proved very destructive to numbers of ships, and I am sorry to say, many lives have been lost, and much damage has been done on land. On Thursday last when the gale was at its highest, the whole of the North Wing of the Crystal Palace fell before it, and now lies a complete wreck. Fortunately that portion of the Building was empty at the time; so that the loss is confined to the Building itself, the restoration of which will cost £6,000. It appears, however, to be a question with the Directors, whether as it is but seldom used, they should expend so large a sum on it. Another accident partially caused by these severe winds is the entire destruction of the beautiful spire of Chichester Cathedral, which was at the time undergoing repair.

The Great Eastern after being so long idle will, it is said, leave England early in the Spring for America, where she has been guaranteed a cargo, chiefly of cotton, the freight of which will amount to $75,000. She is at present lying at Newhaven.

Of Foreign news that which will be looked for with the greatest interest will be Italian and American. Of the former the chief point is the surrender of Gaeta which took place on the morning of the 14th instant, after the departure of the King and his family for Rome. The garrison remain prisoners of war. The parting between the King and the people, who were assembled in vast masses, is described as having been most touching, the populace shedding tears. The siege had been carried on for some days previously with very great vigour, and the state of suffering of the besieged who were perishing of fever as well as from other causes must have been intense.

Victor Emmanuel as King of Italy has opened his new Parliament; and letters from Rome announce that he will shortly be proclaimed in his new character at the Capitol.

The King of Naples, or, as I suppose he ought now to be called, the Ex-King of Naples, has left Rome for Bavaria.

Great sensation has been created in Paris by the arrest of M. Mirès the well known speculator and contractor for the recent Turkish loan, on criminal charges, the precise nature of which is not yet generally known.

Eugene Scribe, the dramatic writer, is dead.

The articles taken from the Summer Palace of the Emperor of China, and presented to the Emperor of the French are being exhibited to the public in the Tuileries.

Affairs in America still wear a very unsettled aspect. Seven States, viz., South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, and Texas, have seceded from the Union; and the general opinion in the North seems to be that things must be worse before they can be better. As matters now stand the old Union has not a mile of coast on the Mexican Gulf, and the idea seems to be gaining ground daily that nothing conclusive will be effected without recourse to arms. Much blame is attached to Mr. Buchanan for his vacillating policy.

The occupation of Syria by the French troops still continues to occupy the public mind; and a report is now current that Russia has agreed to support France in her determination not to withdraw from that country. The Turkish Government in common with most of the other European powers, is opposed to a prolonged occupation; but this apparently is a matter of very little consideration to the French Emperor.

Among other promotions and appointments which have been gazetted, I may mention those of Admiral Hope who has been made Rear Admiral of the White; and of Mr. John Smale who has been appointed Attorney General of Hongkong

THE CHINA QUESTION.

(From the Times, February 20.)

Earl Grey has thought that the time has now arrived to sum up the long history of our wars with China. This is encouraging to those who hope that the period of those wars is past, and that we are entering upon a long era of amity and profitable trade. It shows that Lord Grey himself is unconsciously influenced by a conviction which he will not recognize, and that he is seizing an opportunity which may not recur. He has constrained himself to hold the theory that the treaty just concluded is but a truce, destined to be followed by still more fatal wars; yet some inner prompting compels him to deal with it as the end of a Thirty Years' War, and to come forth with his epitome and his moral. In a single speech he laboured on Monday night to compress all that China has suffered, and all that America, France, Portugal, and England have inflicted, since the commencement of the first Opium War. It is much worse than renewing untold griefs; it is a general resuscitation of griefs a thousand times recounted, and, as most people had hoped, dismissed for ever. It wants but a few months of twenty-two years since that mass of opium was seized that was the cause of the war which led to the Treaty of Nankin. Lord Grey insists on bringing all the events of that period again before our eyes, and challenges us to admit that we were wicked and unjust in that war, that the indemnity we exacted occasioned the rebellion of the Taepings, that opium smuggling, and not the drain of specie silver, was the real origin of the war, that China is now insolvent, that this insolvency is the result of the abstraction of silver by our forces, and that we, who know the rules of international law as laid down by Vattel, are bound to observe them, while the Chinese, who do not know Vattel, and are not even able to set one of our principal Ministers right as to the country of his birth, ought not to be expected to observe the natural rules of right and wrong.

It is very hard to have to admit all this under pain of the still more dreadful alternative of going back for a quarter of a century before the affair of the Arrow, and travelling the dreary road marked by ingenious tricks of trade by European merchants and cruel retaliations by Chinese Mandarins. We may have an entire conviction that a Government which allows hundreds of square miles of rich land to be covered with white poppies cannot have the honest horror of opium which they very righteously might entertain. We may believe that a country which has been absorbing, even to saturation, all the silver of the West, year by year, ever since the date of the Treaty of Nankin, cannot have been beggared by the abstraction of a sum which does not amount to one year's import of bullion. We may think it probable that a Government which has just spent two millions in building forts to prevent our Ambassador from going quietly to Pekin cannot be in a very distressed state for money. We may, reading the history of China, which is one long history of never-ceasing rebellions, entertain a strong opinion that the rebellion of the Taepings has only one connexion with the Treaty of Nankin,—that the army opposing them is paid out of the Customs' duties gathered at Shanghai. But who would follow us if we were to set to work with facts and figures to prove all this? Lord Bacon says that an epitome is but a moth upon the garment of History. Earl Grey's epitome is a moth of most industrious appetite. It has eaten holes in every part of the fabric. But who would wait upon our labour if we were assiduously to follow after and darn all these holes? The task would be prodigious. There is scarcely a fact left unmoutheaten. The speech reads like cross-readings from old China bluebooks. Facts, small and great, are alike refracted in this rippling stream of history. Captain Sherard Osborn records that in one of the suburbs of the great trading emporium of China he startled a pheasant, so desolate and ruined had that suburb become since the rebels had visited it. Earl Grey transfers this incident to "the centre of the city" of Nankin, the far off capital of the South, where the "Emperor of the Rebels,"—if, indeed, he be a real personage—has now been enthroned for ten years. Mr. Taylor Meadows has written a book, which most people have seen, to prove, among a multitude of other things, that the rebels are true patriots, very well-meaning persons, and rather good Christians than otherwise. Earl Grey mentions him as his specimen authority for "the terror and desolation produced by" the rebellion. Mr. Wade, the Chinese Secretary, who is the first sinologue in China, and has been the interpreter to Lord Elgin in both his embassies, is known only to Earl Grey as "one of our Consuls," and is cited, not for any of that learning in which he is so eminent, but for a dictum upon the tea duties which happens to be especially unsound. With these flaws and many others of the same kind visible on the surface, what temptation could we offer to the reader to dive with us into an examination of the links of this chain cable which are down in deep water? The principal paradox which Lord Grey asks us to believe, and also to assume his proofs, is that the Chinese Government has been beggared by a treaty which has had the effect of so changing the balance of trade that, instead of exporting bullion, China has for the 18 years that have elapsed since that treaty was signed been receiving upon an average four millions' worth of bullion every year. She has sold every year four millions' worth of goods more than she has bought, and she has received the surplus in cash and put it into her national pocket. If this be the way to beggary, we would beg of Earl Grey to point it out to us all, that we may all set out upon it.

We may not venture to accept the challenge to enter upon a chronicle of our Chinese wars, for we remember that the chronicle was only read before King Ahasuerus when he could not take rest. We are not at this time of day bound to defend the Opium War. No doubt, those who made their fortunes by the opium are by this time very respectable people, and of a decidedly serious turn of mind; we may leave them therefore to cover the odium of it. Nor will we open again the question of the lorcha Arrow, or inquire in what page of Vattel we shall find our condemnation for interfering with Yeh's proceedings in the execution-ground and prisons of Canton. There is much in the past that will not bear to be squared and measured by the rules of Vattel, and cannot be justified by authority greater than Vattel. International law, however, is nothing more than a very imperfect exposition of the human instinct in favour of natural justice. The Chinese have in their books laid it down as a maxim that "to rule barbarians by misrule is the true and best way of ruling them." In dealing with a people who were resolved to do us wrong—not ignorantly, but wilfully and upon principle—we cannot hope that every deed will bear its comment. But when Lord Grey asks us to believe that the result of the acts of the last thirty years is evil, he asks us to cease to exercise our reason or to believe our senses. Of the kidnapping our hands are free. We have made stringent laws which prevent any Englishmen from joining in that nefarious traffic. This has no connexion with either English war or English treaty. But the rise of great commercial cities upon the coast of the Eastern seas is all the work of these wars. We may have torn the earth with a sharp harrow, but the seed is sown. In the last year Shanghai, Canton, and Swatow gave to the Imperial Treasury a million and a half sterling for Customs' dues. Within ten years the trade of Shanghai has risen from £7,000,000 to £28,000,000—the balance of trade being at that port £2 000,000 in favour of China. We quote Shanghai because these are the only returns which we have before us including the year 1859, but we have no reason to doubt that the other ports would show similar results. All this increase in exports represents industry in China, and much of the increase in imports represents industry in England. The tea producers, the silk producers of China, and the producers of textile fabrics in England and America, find their interest in these sums; and, although the barbarous Tartars of Pekin may for a little season overlook the advantages of these reciprocities, we hope we may anticipate that, when the facts are made apparent to a candid and instructed British Peer, he may come to admit that, if even there may have been evil in the past, there is profit in the present and hope in the future.

Shanghai, 19th April, 1861.

To the Editor of the North-China Herald.

Sir,—Referring to a notice published in your paper by the pilots belonging to the Pilot Schooner New York and Pilot Boat J. A. Potter stating that none but licensed pilots will be put on board of vessels from said schooner and boat I beg to inform Captain's acting this part that such is not correct, for the majority of outward piloting is performed by apprentices, and on the 18th inst. I was within two miles of a P. & O. Steamer which was coming from the southward, Gutzlaff Island bearing S.W, distant about twelve miles, when the Pilot Boat J. A. Potter went along-side of said steamer and put on board of her a person who had never before piloted any vessel into this port and who brought her to Shanghai in direct opposition to the advertisement above referred to.

I am Sir, your obedient servant,

JOSEPH HARMON, Licensed Pilot.
